

This template can be put at the top of pages and categories that have a backlog which require attention. A backlog is a list of things that need to be done and that have not been done for some time.

Usage

Usually this template is used without any parameters, then it is always visible until it is manually removed. Like this:

```
{{backlog}}
```

Which renders like this:

This page has a backlog that requires the attention of willing editors.
Please remove this notice when the backlog is cleared.

This template automatically shows the appropriate style depending on what kind of page it is shown on.

Examples

Autoreport

Often it is more efficient to handle several cases in a backlog at a time, since then we are up to speed with what needs to be done. Thus we often don't want to know about a backlog until it has reached some size.

When this template is placed on a category page it can count the number of items in the category (pages + images + subcategories). Then it can be set to automatically only report when the number of items is above some limit. The autoreport limit can be set to whatever value you prefer. Like this:

```
{{backlog|10}}
```

If the category has 10 or more items this template will render like this:

This page has a backlog that requires the attention of willing editors.
This notice will hide when this category has fewer than 0 items. (recount)

(We fed 0 here to make it show in this documentation, but in real usage it would show the value 10.)

Template:Backlog/doc

But if the category has less than 10 items then this template will not report the page, and will instead render like this:

If this category gets 10 items or more, it will report as a backlog.

(recount)
